While the Directors and the Senior Management should be free to make personal investments and enjoy social relations and normal business courtesies, they must not have any interests that adversely influence the performance of their duties, functions and responsibilities as the Director and the Senior Management of the Company. A conflict of interest can arise when improper personal benefits accrue to the Director or the Senior Management or a member of his/her immediate family as a result of his/her position as the Director or the Senior Management. A conflict of interest may not always be clear. Therefore, the Directors or the Senior Management must promptly bring any question about his or her actual or potential conflict of interest with the Company to the attention of the chairman of the Board or the compliance officer, who will then review the question and determine a proper course of action, including whether consideration or action by the full Board is necessary. The Directors or the Senior Management involved in any conflict or potential conflict situations shall disclose such conflict or potential conflict to the Board and recuse themselves from any discussion or decision relating thereto.
